TINTIN AU VIETNAM

Tintin in vietnam

Tintin in vietnam t shirt. Tintin in vietnam book. Tintin in vietnamese.

I recently traveled to Vietnam. While I was in Hue, the cultural capital of Vietnam, a strange thought occurred to me: "Can I have Tintin in Vietnamese?" Before coming to Hue, I was in Ha Noi and stayed in the Old Quarter. I explored the whole place on foot, but didn't come across any bookstores. I wasn't actively looking either. Instead, over the weekend I was busy immersing myself in the amazing nightlife of the Old Quarter. When I found Tintin in Hue's book on my way to the Forbidden River, I came across a large store owned by PNC, a major chain of books and stationery in Vietnam. I searched the shelves and found many translated manga titles, the most notable being Dragon Ball, Detective Conan, and Doraemon. There were also some native Vietnamese titles. PNC store in Hue. Many popular titles such as J.K. Rowling's Harry Potter, Steig Larsson's Millennium Trilogy, and Rick Riordan's The Olympics Saga were all available as translations. An entire aisle is dedicated to Dragon Ball. I bought the first volume in Vietnamese. Detective Conan - or what English speakers would know as Case Closed. Doraemon à He is as famous in Vietnam as he is in Japan and India! I'm surprised no Hindi publisher has bothered to translate the Doraemon manga into Hindi. Couldn't find any Tintin titles (Vietnamese characters didn't help) so I looked up a picture of Tintin and showed it to the staff. He immediately recognized the image and asked, "Tintin?" I nodded and added, "Vietnamese." He disappeared and did not return for 15 minutes. I sat down for a coffee instead (they have a nice coffee shop and reading room). When he returned he had two books with him, Broken Ear and Cobra Valley. The latter is not a Tintin album. Despite this, the publisher included the Tintin and Snowy logo in the upper left corner. I took the first one and bought it for 17,000 VND - which is less than $1 and less than 50 INR! I put the book on the ground and immediate. The broken ear / bá "© C tae iif £ NG it" was published by the Nha Xuá wonder £ n. The album uses the binding of the act, not the perfect link to the four signatures that can be found in EGMONT publications. Reducing costs is the most prominent than the paper chosen. Given the fact that this book was published in 1996, I have to compare it with Metuen's publication or its magnet/mammoth prints. Although I do not have a ready-made book, I am convinced that the pages used in Metuen, even with that soft cover, were thicker than this Vietnamese publication. In fact, the pages are so thin that the line or text on page 5 is visible through pages 3 and 4. Thin paper with spaces on both sides shows the contents of the next page. Publications are definitely taken from any of the previous English publications on Hyslop. The text panels were carefully replaced by Vietnamese text using a more traditional cutting method with a spatula. Speech balls with text and sound effects retain original sound effects prints. Check the round panel. Speech ball sound effects (musical record) are preserved from the original Hyslop publication. There are leaves where you can see the Kmyk Plastina offset plate. This did not happen to Metuen's books, which I read in 1996. However, the original Ananda publishers' circulation in Bengalia suffered from this problem. In 1996, Ananda Publishers used thicker paper for printing, but they used terrible glue. CMYK plates mismatch on this page is the most prominent. It is also obvious that the source was not the original CMYK plate, because the black lines consist of four colors and do not have a special plate K. The back cover lists all the names that were published by that time. I doubt whether they are easy now. Tintin's album catalog is available at the sitetime of publication. I was more surprised to find only one album of each of the three double albums on the list. There's Destination Moon, but no explorers on the moon, Prisoners of the Sun, but no seven crystal balls, and The Secret of the Unicorn, but no Red Rackham's treasure. However, a quick search on Tintinologist.org revealed that Vietnamese editions of these missing albums were indeed released. Tintin au Vietnam Later, I visited many souvenir shops and always came across canvas covers, embroidery or photo prints with such images, although Helden did not send it to Vietnam, the Vietnamese took it to their country. The Adventures of Tintin Syldavia in the Balkans comes from Hergé's own recording modeling Montenegro[] and is threatened by neighboring borders. An attempted annexation appears in King Ottokar's Scepter. The situation resembles that of Czechoslovakia or Austria and expansionist Nazi Germany before World War II. Later, the Sprodi Atomic Center is the site of the launch of the first rocket to the moon. Borduria is Syldavia's historical rival and is attempting a fascist annexation similar to1938 Austria connected in the scepter of the King of Ottokar. Borduria is ruled by the military dictator Marshal Carvi--Ssh, who not only depresses his own people, but also tries to influence the conflicts of the Third World and to send "military advisors" to countries such as San Theodoros. Set in Arabia. Hemed is exposed to the revolution in the "sharks of the Red Sea" and "Earth of Black Gold". Most of the events of flight 714 in Sydney take place on the island of Pulau-Pulau Bomba (Pulau-Pulau in Indonesian "Islands") with the participation of people, which Erzhey calls the Sondonesians. They say that they are experiencing a civil war or the War of Independence and are now becoming the attitude of separatist militants in the Republic of South Maluku. It was a self-proclaimed republic of the Seismisch, active islands in the Molucca Sea, the residents of which fought for independence from Indonesia in the 1950s and 1960s. The inclusion of Kemayran Airport in Jakarta and radio messages from Macassar immediately before recording the aircraft suggests that this place is within the Indonesian archipelago. The Sondonesians' talks in the album are held on the Indonesian Malay (Indonesian). The monkey that appears in the album is exclusively for Borneo. San Teodoros in South America, a typical banana republic, in which American companies and on-board courses (ie the USSR or Cuba) compete with the "consultants" of local generals. The capital is a Los Dopacos, later renamed Tapiokolis. San Rico in South America. San Rico was added as a link in later versions of the "falling star". In the original version, the malignant inspiring stereotypes were Jewish American puppet players in a later version, the sound of their skin was darkened and San Rico inserted as a reference. Nuevo Rico borders San Theodoros. Two countries enter the war due to oil in a "broken ear", which is parallel to the Coko war of the 1930s between Paraguay and Bolivia. The capital of Nuevo Rico is sanfasnia (a piece about Asunus,that it is modeled on Paraguay). Gran Chapo after the Chaco region in South America Broken Ear plays in a war inspired by the Chaco War. Both Pilchardania and Poldavia are mentioned in Blue Lotus. Pilchardania is mentioned in the news and is hidden from the police in Tim and Struppi. The Consul of Poldavia is confused with a beard and wig in the opium cavity of the blue lotus with Tim and Struppi. Gaipayam, an Indian principality based on the one that existed during the British Raj, is mentioned in Pharaoh's Cigars. Saboulistan is never used in the series, but Hergá had planned to use this new country in the unfinished "Tintin and Alpha-Art". Sethru and Jamjah, the two rulers of India during the British Raj. A train that runs between this route. Mentioned in Pharaoh's Cigars. Room room. Tim and his friends travel to the moon with space researchers. The moon of the earth. Most of themonds take place on the moon. Adonis. Asteroid, who was visited by rocket researchers on the moon. Captain Haddock almost becomes a satellite of Adonis, drunk by smuggled whiskey. Copyright © Hergé / Tintinmaginatio 2018 Tintin À Siem Reap This title sounds like a pirate album in bad taste, yet Tintin has already made its home in the country of the Khmer, which, like Belgium, is a kingdom. His first achievement is to be a translation into Khmer from the Austroasiatic languages present in Southeast Asia. Khmer specifically belongs to the Mon-Khmer group of languages that coexist with the Munda languages spoken in India. The Khmer language is spoken mainly in Cambodia, as well as in some areas bordering the territories of Thailand and Vietnam. It is spoken by approximately 14,200,000 people. AlthoughKhmer publication is currently limited to one title - Blue Lotus - but this edition is very symbolic in a country that has suffered unimaginable suffering and atrocities. Casterman with the collaboration of Culturel Le Center Frankais du Cambodge, first founded in 2001, with the help of Christophe Macquet of the University © Royale de Phnom Penh. Copyright © Hergá © / Tintinmaginatio 2018 The Khmer Alphabet has 33 consonants and 24 vowels. But the spoken language has much more vowels (in the Khmer sense), it may seem strange and impractical, but behind this irregularity there is a trick that sums up Wikipedia: Copyright © Hergá © / Tintinmaginatio 2018 Derrire Cette Incongrututova ©, il y i Une astuce qui est sews sum. If a vowel is associated with the first series (called Light), it creates a certain sound and, if it is associated with the second series (heavy), it creates another sound. Thus, the vowels have two possible pronunciations (except 3 which retains the same sound in both cases and 1 which has three sounds). Most vowels that have two sounds add to more than forty vowels, which may seem like a lot. The meaning of vowels from Khmery is not entirely linguists. For example: o short, o long, about, then M, about H, then Glottal Stops consists of 5 different vowels. The language also has many Diphthongs. Most of the consonants (with the exception of one NC) also occur in French, although they are not absolutely identical. On the other hand, the French have some that are unknown or still officially overwritten "academically", in Khmer: f g (sound g 'like in a cake or cake), j and z (sound from (sound from (sound from (sound from (sound z, like in zebra or kiss, people who only speak khmer have a bit of trouble with the distinctive jewel and kiss) and pronounce it yourself (often adds a hiss). CH sound, like in a hat oris overwritten by the sound of T'ch. (Wikipedia source). Khmer comes from Vattelutl native to southern India or Sri Lanka and appeared at the beginning of our era. Tinin has never been to Cambodia...but during his voyage to China (1934-1935) through India the tip of ancient French Indochina (consisting of three now independent countries of Southeast Asia, Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia) in the South China Sea. Cochín-China (south of modern-day Vietnam, which appeared on maps as a separate area from other Cambodian and Annam territories) was returned to the rest of Vietnam in 1949, still under the auspices of France (state-owned Vietnam declared in 1949). It was not until 1954 that the independence of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia was announced on the basis of the Geneva Accords, which ended the war in Indochina and at the same time meant the end of the Indochina Federation. These agreements will eventually collapse and lead to the war in Vietnam (1955-1975). These armistice agreements in Geneva actually divided Vietnam into two zones corresponding to the forces involved (North Vietnam supported by the Eastern Bloc and China and South Vietnam supported by the United States and its allies). This dividing line will not last long. Hergé also did not forget to draw the territory of Cambodia on the map of the Asian continent published in Le Petit on December 20, 1932, announcing Tintin's journey east. Copyright © Hergé / Tintinmaginatio 2018 We can't mention Cambodia without mentioning the horrific period of the Khmer Rouge who became the country random and frightening between 1975 and 1979. On April 17, 1975, Rin Tin Maly 17 people were evacuated from Phnompen and sent to Ta deh Village, Slong Township, Kravanh Oblast, Pursat Province. After arriving, all participants were separated and dispersed to "work" in the area: in the countryside and forest, especially in Battambang. The father, who was a former Lon Nel soldier, was sent to Chra Nauk, a high security authority. The mother was assigned to work in the weaving shop in Vat Ekas village. Angkara (which literally means "organization"), the Soviet equivalent to the Russian Revolution, sent one of the children to a special unit responsible for the latest. The eldest brother was sent to another unit. The aim was to break traditional family units and social links and organize most people in the form of cooperatives (forced labor), to force them to engage in a laborious collective life,Community feed and constant tracking. A regime that maintained an atmosphere of fear and constant terror. The ultimate goal was to "control" the population. This totalitarian approach and the purges that accompanied it are estimated to have killed more or less 21% of the Khmer population at the time, totaling 7,890,000. Copyright © Hergé / Tintinmaginatio 2018 We could meet Kin Noh, who lives in Wat Kor: his father was killed by the Khmer Rouge in 1977. During his early youth, he grew up in a refugee camp in the middle of the forest while the Guerrilla War continued in the north. Cambodia. He joined the school only at the age of 13. He escaped and was then able to study engineering. He could even learn French. It was there that he discovered Tintin and his adventure!
